

XIII. STUDENT PERCEPTION OF FACULTY

Student perception surveys may provide helpful information for faculty as they strengthen their teaching techniques. Information from these surveys, along with other methods, is used for the purposes of professional development of teaching, annual evaluations, promotion, and tenure. Schools and departments administer student perception surveys for each course taught.