

XX. TUTORING

A. Faculty Tutoring

Faculty members are encouraged to assist individual students. The degree to which any faculty member wishes to devote time to helping the individual student in academic work must be determined by the faculty member. In no case is a faculty member permitted to accept payment from students for tutorial work.

B. Peer Tutoring

Certain departments are granted funds for organized student, i.e. peer, tutoring. This service is intended primarily to aid beginning students or those in lower-class courses in areas in which tutoring has proven valuable, and in which the student is most vulnerable. Requests for tutoring funds are made to the academic deans.
